

From: William Day
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/23/02 11:24pm
Subject: Microsoft remedy should NOT have them giving to primary schools.

Dear DOJ,

The Microsoft remedy should NOT have them giving software to primary schools.

I'm happy if Microsoft give as much hardware as it wants to schools, just as long as there is no Microsoft software bundled with it.

Otherwise, if microsoft gives software to schools, this is just a trojan horse and the tip of the iceberg if you look at the total cost of ownership. The maintenance of microsoft software has yet to be automated, unlike Apple Macintosh and Linux, and all its other competitors.

A person still has to weekly click on Windows update on every box in order to keep secure any version of Microsoft windows. Don't foist insecure hardware on our schools, the folks least able to afford it.

-- Hope this helps,
Bill Day

CC: William Dechand